Gaana Video Songs Vande Mataram createYoutubelframe('AEHVQf-LLE', 'Vande Mataram') Tomorrow, to celebrate 73rd Independence Day, violin master Dr. L. Subramaniam will digitally release a five-minute video, 'Vande Mataram', which can be viewed on YouTube and on his Facebook page from 8 a.m. It will be a pleasure to see two months of our hard work come to life through this video. It brings together 73 musicians and has 150 orchestral arrangement songs that were specially recorded in Europe for this piece, subramaniam says, talking on the phone from his Bengaluru residence. Two aspects make this video special: It is the first time since the lockdown that 57 instrumentalists have joined live for a special orchestral recording. The video shows the Subramaniam family—wife Kavita, children Bindu, Ambi and Narayana, and their granddaughter Mahati Subramaniam. Kavita has always been part of my great projects and in 'Vande Mataram', she has handled the lyrics apart from singing. I have composed the piece, a mixture of orchestral symphony and voice, says Subramaniam. How different is 'Vande Mataram' from his recent collaborative work, 'Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam', released online two months ago? After my tour of Australia and New Zealand, the lockdown was announced and we were confined to our homes. That's when I thought the whole world looks like a family. I used the London Symphony Orchestra with the Bharat Symphony-Movement 4 theme I had previously composed. Uncertainty continues. My tours for collaborations and live performances for Independence Day celebrations in the United States were cancelled. So I decided to get to something special. Subramaniam wrote each note for the score that was emailed to the conductor to plan the orchestral arrangement. I'm grateful to Irish-American music director and music director Derek Gleeson for his involvement in recording during such a crisis, Subramaniam says. The 'Vande Mataram' music team has actor and politician Hema Malini singing, as well as performing abhinaya for the lyrics. Actors such as Mohanlal and Juhi Chawla have sung some lines. In addition to these, the video features renowned singers S.P. Balasubrahmanyam, Kumar Sanu, Hariharan, Sonu Nigam and Shreya Ghoshal, as well as leading instrumentalists Ronu Majumdar (flute), Debashish Bhattacharya (sliding guitar) Tanmoy Bose (table), and Sanjeev Nayak and Ambi (violin). The piece is based on raga Kirvani, chosen by flexibility it offers to move from one launch to another.
